II. Catalog Description

Prerequisite: ENGL 111 English Composition I. This course examines major works of world literature, including, but not limited to, fiction, essays, poems and plays, from the seventeenth century through the twenty-first century and examines significant time periods and diverse cultures. The course is interdisciplinary, connecting primary texts to literary movements, historical events, sociological issues, and biographical information.

III. Statement of Course Need

A. World Literature since the Renaissance meets the needs of students who have a desire to understand the culture and literature of diverse and varied traditions from around the world. It is a course that, under varying titles, is often included in the curriculum of college English departments and meets an elective requirement of the English Department’s Associates of Arts degree in English. Both the focus and the course content of World Literature since the Renaissance reflect the college’s commitment to diversity and its efforts to infuse multicultural perspectives into the classroom for the purpose of preparing our students for more thoughtful and effective participation in the global community.
