II. Catalog Description

Prerequisite: ENGL 111 English Composition I. This multidisciplinary course is designed to define and assess African American literature and its contributions to American culture and the American literary canon. The course will cover/explore Colonial times through the present, including antebellum and postbellum poetry and prose, the Harlem Renaissance and African American Modernism, the Black Aesthetic Movement, and African American Neo-Realism. In order to understand and appreciate the oral and written traditions/literary expressions of African Americans, students read a variety of texts; folktales, short stories, poetry, novels, and dramatic works. Students also read contemporary literary criticism, as well as pertinent theoretical works from other disciplines.

III. Statement of Course Need

A. African American Literature is designed to expose students to the literary contributions of African Americans and the African Diaspora in the United States. African American Literature is a course that is included in the curriculum of college English departments and meets an elective requirement of the English Department’s Associates of Arts degree in English. Both the focus and the course content of African American Literature reflect the college’s commitment to diversity and its efforts to infuse multicultural perspectives into the classroom for the purpose of preparing our students for more thoughtful and effective participation in the global community.
