II. Catalog Description

Prerequisite: None. This course will introduce students to the musical traditions of a variety of non-Western cultures, through recorded examples, lecture-demonstrations and live, in-class performances. The course will explore how the elements of music are treated in different cultures, and what musical ideas are common to all cultures. It will also examine the role music plays in the everyday life in different societies. Finally, it will examine how music today reflects the phenomenon of globalization by combining elements of different musical cultures.

III. Statement of Course Need
A. This course answers a need for improving students’ understanding of cultural diversity. In this capacity it is an important offering as a general education course, but it is also of great value as an elective for music majors, as a basic understanding of world music is an ever-greater necessity for musicians in a world where new styles are constantly being synthesized from the combinations of diverse cultural traditions.

B. A lab fee is being imposed to offset the cost of the multiple live performers/lecturers and performance space requirements that will make up the appropriate curriculum experiences.

C. Course Transferability: Based on the evaluations of this course at www.njtransfer.org, Introduction to World Music transfers as a General Education Course in the Arts, Humanities, and Global and Cultural Awareness, as an Arts elective, or as a Free elective.
